

ReportView Ad Hoc Reporting

StoneRiver applications include a variety of standard reports, but our clients often have specific management objectives that require more tailored reporting.

That's where ReportView comes in. ReportView is a business-driven, interactive query and report builder that enables business users to create boardroom-quality reports—without extensive programming or database knowledge.

While financial report writers are limited to General Ledger data, ReportView can pull information from any database, or combination of databases. And it's not limited to StoneRiver financial applications—ReportView can also be used with other applications.

ReportView is based on Impromptu® by Cognos® but it's so much more. We provide companion catalogs that enable you to select your report data from lists that are presented in natural English, not database terminology.

Despite the wide-ranging access it provides, system administrators find it easy to manage ReportView deployment and maintenance, even for hundreds of users. Functional Benefits

- Built-in templates and frame-based report design tools let you point-and-click your way to a finished report
- StoneRiver catalogs let you select the information you need from a list presented in natural English, not database field names
- A single report can include data from multiple databases

- Data can be sorted, subtotaled, and selected by any field to provide more meaningful results
- Graphs and charts are easily created in ReportView to illustrate your data
- ReportView enables you to format your reports with boardroom quality

Competitive Advantages

- Shorter learning curve than the leading competitor
- Ease of use, from novice to expert
- Lower total cost of ownership. Not only is the solution less expensive, it requires far less training, consulting, and maintenance
- Unlike other reporting tools, programming and database expertise are not required
- The Impromptu user base exceeds 20,000 worldwide

Report Examples

- Custom Trial Balance
